I want my son, who is studying to become a teacher, to be able to live here! He is 27. When he was three, and his older sister was five, our nanny of five years finally quit. She lived in Menlo Park when we hired her, but got priced out and moved to Modesto. After a year of driving back and forth, she could no longer sustain the soul-sucking commute. That was 24 years ago, and it's gotten far worse. The homes planned for downtown Menlo Park will be affordable to caregivers like "Lala" (as my son called her when he was two), teachers (like my son will become), firefighters, nurses, city staff, and downtown workers. That's why I was out there with Ronen, and will be out there again! Will you join us?
